THE COLLEGE, WINCHESTER. The ancient college of St. Mary, founded by William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester (1367-1404), the earliest great public school of England. The College buildings are arranged in two quadrangles with detached cloisters. The north front in College Street, built originally with a view to defence, presents a nearly blank wall with only a few insignificant windows, but relieved by a noble gateway tower. The College buildings, seen from the gardens, show a more gracious aspect.
